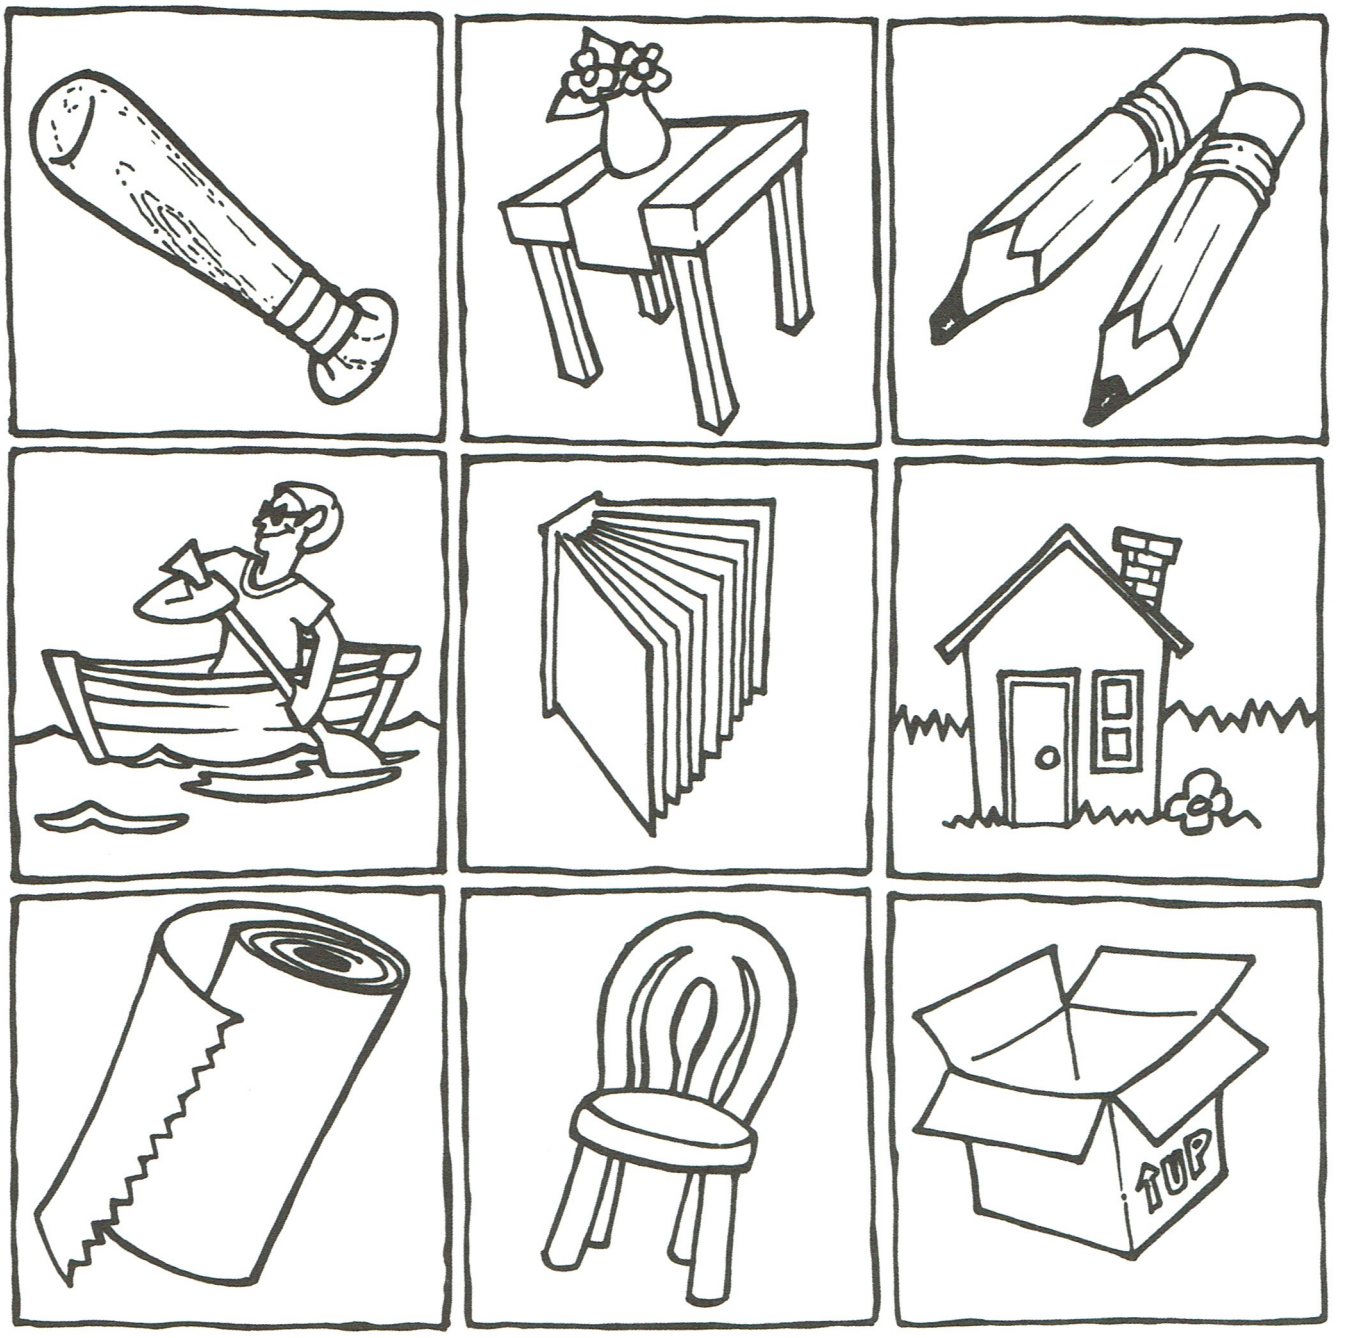
Foresters go to college to learn about the forest.

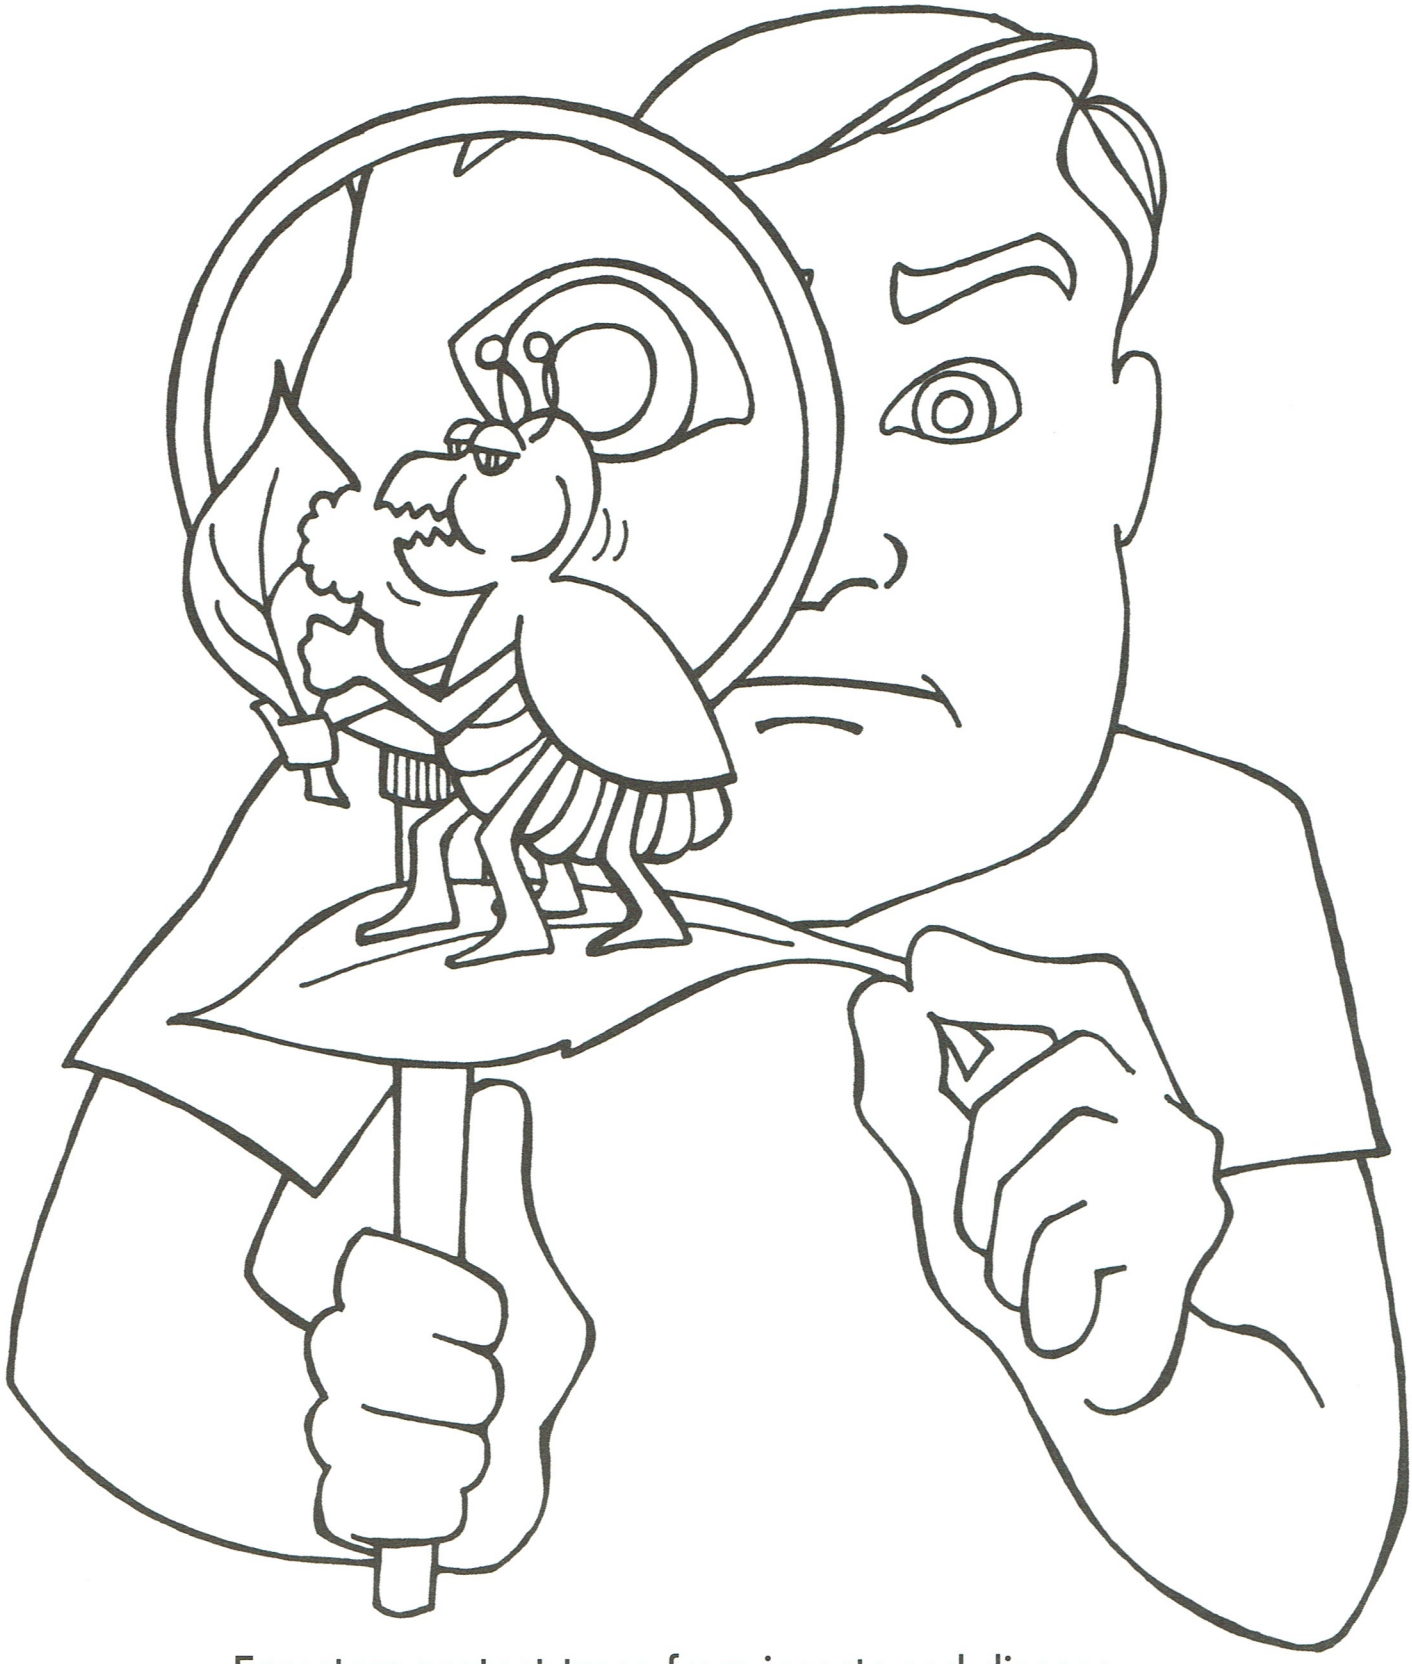
Foresters take care of the little trees in the forest . . .

and foresters take care of BIG trees in the forest.



Foresters harvest trees for the things we need and use.

Foresters grow baby trees in nurseries for planting so we will always have forests and the products they provide.



Foresters protect trees from insects and disease.

Wildfires are one of the forester's biggest enemies.

Foresters teach us about trees in the forest.

Forest scientists discover better ways to grow trees and use the forest.

Some foresters take care of the trees in our towns and cities.
They are called "Urban Foresters."

The forest is a special home for animals.

If we use our forests wisely, we will always have them to enjoy.

Hi, Kids!
Trees are very important to everyone. That's why foresters like me take care of the forest.

You can help too. A fun way to start is by planting a tree with a friend! Together we can keep the forest clean and green.
